Liberty In America

JANIS TURNER

A forty-foot bus, a small town in south-east New York, a chief administrative officer, a CATO scholar, and a family of four. Sounds totally disconnected, doesn't it? Meet Liberty In America.

Beth Powers, founder and former Chief Administrative Officer for Dresser-Rand, left her lucrative job a couple of years ago when she realized the United States was heading down an unsustainable path. She studied at CATO for a year, and with her husband, Chris, established a plan for Liberty In America.

As Beth thought about what assets she already owned that could be utilized in her vision, her 40' RV Prevost bus came to mind. Why not take an icon to the people, to garner attention in order to educate, motivate and activate? The Liberty Bus was born when a beautiful vinyl wrap was applied in Buffalo, New York, with pictures of the Statue of Liberty, The Declaration of Independence, and quotations from John Adams and Thomas Paine.

"Liberty Once Lost, Is Lost Forever" shows on one side of the bus. Liberty In America's mission is to stop the loss of liberty. It is a grassroots movement focused on education and activism to enhance understanding on:

WHY government spending must be significantly reduced,
WHY private enterprise is a more effective alternative for services
WHY individual choice, risk and reward is culturally imperative for liberty to survive in America, and
HOW YOU can change the direction away from government dependency and toward liberty and freedom.

Americans are empowered to make changes when we disagree with the direction of our country. We can transform oppressive bureaucracy, blatant fiscal irresponsibility, collectivist philosophy, and elitist representatives by sending a shock wave through both political parties and both houses of Congress.

We will inspire a better future and liberate the free spirit of Americans by understanding our natural instinct for helping each other, encouraging voluntary charity rather than coercive government social programs, and allowing the inevitable outcome of failure from irresponsible risk.

Our 2010 tour started in New York, spread to Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Virginia, Maryland and Washington,

Janis Turner, Justina Quagliata, Beth Powers, Luke Balbo, and Gordy Maker

D.C. The Liberty Team became Beth Powers, founder and speaker; Janis Turner, Admin. Assistant; Gordy Maker, Bus Driver; and Luke Balbo and Justina Quagliata, student interns from St. Bonaventure University. In June, the crew boarded the Liberty Bus and took off for points west.

We had a home meeting in Michigan, which opened the door for a week-long event in Sandusky, Ohio for "Ohio Bike Week". We met Bruce Washburn here, navy seal vet, event organizer and a man with almost as much energy as Beth (almost). We also met hundreds of bike riding patriots who picked up United States Constitutions, chatted with us, signed our "Commitment to the American Citizen" (see the website) and signed the Liberty Bus. We learned about the Ohio Project and spread the message of downsizing the U.S. government. Bruce and his girlfriend, Tari, became honorary members of LIA and we were sad to leave Ohio, but anxious to continue our mission of motivating patriots for liberty. The bus then went to Chicago, where Liberty Team members were seen passing out U.S. Constitutions at the Chicago Blues Festival. Some people wanted to know, "is this the liberal constitution?" Huh? We assured them it was the original Constitution. Even at an arts event, we met many people angry about the economic situation in America. The bus left Chicago and headed to Wisconsin, where we met the "GrandSons of Liberty," who are doing a great work in that state by not only spreading liberty through their own organization, but also uniting 72 other liberty groups in Wisconsin that meet monthly, and are affecting legislation in their state. If you want to hear the rest of our story, our trip to Vegas, Sharron Angle, life on the bus and meeting the Chinese-American Political Party in San Francisco, see our blog on www.libertyinamerica.org, and legosandliberty.blogspot.com.

The Liberty Bus is available to come to your organization, home, rally or whistle-stop. We are non-profit, non-partisan, and exist on private donations. Invite us to a home party and attendees each get a free Citizen's Kit, some education, some activism, a chance to sign the bus, and a great deal of fun and discussion. See www.libertyinamerica.org and lets sign the bus for liberty!
